'Why Hide the Information'? Lawsuit Seeks Documents Related to Fauci's Wife

A lawsuit filed in federal court accuses the U.S. government of stonewalling because officials won't release documents pertaining to potential conflicts of interest involving Christine Grady, Ph.D., chief of the National Institutes of Health Department of Bioethics — and wife of Dr. Anthony Fauci.

A lawsuit filed in federal court accuses the U.S. government of stonewalling because officials won't release documents pertaining to the employment and potential conflicts of interest involving Christine Grady, Ph.D., chief of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) Department of Bioethics — and wife of White House Chief Medical Adviser Dr. Anthony Fauci.

American Transparency, a nonprofit operating as OpenTheBooks.com, filed the complaint July 12 in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia against the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

The HHS is the parent agency of the NIH, which in turn is home to the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), headed by Fauci.

The lawsuit describes OpenTheBooks as "the largest private repository of United States public-sector spending." Judicial Watch, a legal watchdog group, is assisting with the suit via its legal counsel, Paul J. Orfanedes.

According to the lawsuit, OpenTheBooks on April 8 filed a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request with the NIH, seeking the following records:

- All employment contracts, modifications and addendums regarding Grady since she was hired as chief of the Department of Bioethics.
- Any confidentiality agreements/documents, conflict-of-interest waivers or documents, ethics disclosures and financial and/or economic interest disclosure documents.
- Grady's current job description.

The NIH on April 28 acknowledged the FOIA request but has not since communicated with the nonprofit.

The lawsuit states:

> "As of the date of this Complaint, Defendant has failed to: (i) determine whether to comply with the requests; (ii) notify Plaintiff of any such determination or the reasons therefor; (iii) advise Plaintiff of the right to appeal any adverse determination; or (iv) produce the requested records or otherwise demonstrate that the requested records are exempt from production."

The lawsuit claims the NIH legally was required to produce a final determination on the FOIA request by May 26 — 30 days after the initial filing — but failed to do so.

Adam Andrzejewski, CEO and founder of OpenTheBooks, told The Defender that "while NIH could claim 'administrative exhaustion,' they failed to do so on the timeline laid out by law."

OpenTheBooks is asking the court to order the NIH to "conduct a search for any and all records responsive to plaintiff's FOIA requests and demonstrate that it employed search methods reasonably likely to lead to the discovery of [these records]."

The plaintiff also is asking the court to "enjoin [the] Defendant from continuing to withhold any and all non-exempt records," as well as the awarding of attorneys' fees and other relief.

"Some of the information we seek is quite basic," Andrzejewski said, including Grady's actual job description and employment terms.

"It's all material to our investigation because Grady is the top ethics officer at NIH. It is astonishing that highly compensated bureaucrats, especially ones dealing in the public health space, go about their jobs without a simple way for the public to understand what it is they do."

Tom Fitton, president of Judicial Watch, said in a statement:

> "We have good reason to believe that these financial disclosure records will give Americans a more complete picture of the conflicts of interest that have compromised NIH — and Dr. Fauci.
> "That our client had to file a federal lawsuit to gain access to this basic information speaks volumes."

This isn't the first time Andrzejewski's organization has had to fight to obtain similar information about Fauci.

"OpenTheBooks had to ask for much the same information regarding Dr. Fauci, previously, despite his being perhaps one of the most powerful federal employees in history," Andrzejewski said.

"Much of our oversight … is focused around conflicts of interest by scientists employed with our tax dollars. Does the leading bioethicist have any ethical concerns the public should know about?"

Andrzejewski described some of his organization's previous efforts:

> "In January 2021, we broke the findings that Fauci was the top-paid federal employee out earning everyone, including the president.
> "You may remember Senator Robert Marshall questioning Fauci in a January 2022 hearing, with Fauci insisting all his compensation and financial disclosures were readily available to the public.
> "Marshall cited our investigation (published in Forbes at the time), and it led to the 'hot mic' moment of Fauci muttering 'what a moron.'"

Remarking on his organization's collaboration with Judicial Watch, Andrzejewski said:

> "Judicial Watch does incredible work litigating FOIA cases on our behalf, and [the organization's] president, Tom Fitton, said it well: 'We have good reason to believe that these financial disclosure records will give Americans a more complete picture of the conflicts of interest that have compromised NIH and Dr. Fauci.'"

In an email blast to subscribers, OpenTheBooks wrote:

> "The two Faucis live a conflict of interest: at breakfast, the office, and again at the dinner table.
> "The top bioethicist surely must be ethical, right? So why hide the information?
> "But again NIH is stonewalling, and again we're suing to open the books on behalf of you, the taxpayer."

Andrzejewski told The Defender such stonewalling, far from being an extraordinary case, appears to be the norm for the NIH.

"We believe the NIH is using expensive taxpayer-funded litigation to keep taxpayers in the dark," he said.

"For example, we've learned the NIH is past due on 633 FOIA requests. That's evidence that they are understaffed on their freedom of information desk."

On the other hand, Andrzejewski said, the NIH employs 86 public relations officers.

"So they fully staff their PR team," he said. Those numbers "provide some perspective" on the agency's priorities.

Fauci says it's 'likely' he'll be investigated

Soon after OpenTheBooks filed its latest lawsuit, Fauci told the media Republican lawmakers will likely investigate him, should the GOP take control of Congress in this year's midterm elections.

Fauci has already come under fire by Republican lawmakers, who last month questioned him over funding provided by his agency to third-party groups conducting research in China.

Lawmakers asked Fauci about at least $8 million in funding for research in China since 2020, and also asked him if, as NIAID director, he would halt such funding.

Fauci said that isn't possible, and praised his agency's research projects with "Chinese colleagues" that "have led to some major advances in biomedical research."

On Tuesday, Fauci said he will likely step down from his position as director of the NIAID in the next few years, but has no plans to retire.

In a recent interview with Politico, referring to a potential investigation on the part of Republican lawmakers, he said:

> "They're going to try and come after me, anyway. I mean, probably less so if I'm not in the job.
> "I don't make that a consideration in my career decision."

In the same interview, Fauci said if called to testify, he would emphasize the importance of vaccines and boosters, even as he claimed that "we're going to be living with this," referring to COVID-19, for some time to come.

Fauci said it is "difficult," but not impossible, to develop updated COVID-19 vaccines due to the rapid emergence of variants, but that a regular vaccination schedule, akin to the flu vaccine, may emerge within the next six months to two years.

He did not clarify whether, like the flu vaccine, any future COVID-19 vaccines would also be entirely voluntary, without coercive measures such as vaccine passports, mandates and restrictions on travel and movement.

In separate remarks made recently, Fauci admitted "vaccines — because of the high degree of this virus — don't protect overly well, as it were, against infection."

He claimed, however, "they protect quite well against severe disease leading to hospitalization and death."

Robert F. Kennedy, Jr., Children's Health Defense chairman and chief legal counsel, speaking recently to The Epoch Times, said it is "astonishing" that mainstream media is not holding Fauci accountable for his remarks.

Kennedy said:

> "It's astonishing that mainstream media allows [Fauci] to blindly make that statement without any effort to hold him accountable for the costly national policies and the lockdowns that were utterly built upon his initial assertion that the vaccines would prevent transmission and end the pandemic."
> "If they don't prevent transmission, then how does he justify the mandates? Particularly for children?"

Latest lawsuit part of a broader investigative effort

Andrzejewski told The Defender the lawsuit calling for the release of documents pertaining to Grady is part of a broader look at Grady and Fauci, adding he believes Congress should investigate the matter.

Noting, for instance, that Grady's ethics studies provided "ethical support" to Fauci's pandemic countermeasure policies, Andrzejewski said:

> "Christine Grady did the ethics studies to backstop and clear her husband's pandemic policy prescriptions.
> "She claimed she investigated 'a million angles' of COVID healthcare policy. Congress needs to hold hearings and we would love to be a part of it."

Building on the line of questioning Fauci faced during Congressional hearings last month, Andrzejewski said:

> "Congress needs to force open the books on the $400 million in royalty payments to scientists during the last decade. We need to be able to follow the money and see all the details.
> "In June, led by U.S. Senator Rand Paul, five senators on the Senate Homeland Security Committee wrote a transparency demand letter to NIH based on our oversight work for a unredacted database of royalty payments. NIH refused to produce anything by the deadline."

Andrzejewski said through his own organization's "multiyear effort to pull back the curtain and follow the money regarding the inner workings at NIH," they have discovered the agency and its scientists " … have a massive stream of third-party payments coming in from private companies like pharmaceuticals."

These are royalty payments for medical and public health innovations made through NIH research and used in private enterprise, Andrzejewski said.

"We estimate that since 2010, $350-400 million of such payments have flowed into NIH and to 2,000 individual scientists including leaders like Dr. Fauci and former NIH-director Francis Collins."

These payments may be indicative of additional — and perhaps substantially more — conflicts of interest, Andrzejewski argued.

Andrzejewski said:

> "Every one of these individual payments represents a potential conflict of interest when it comes to how NIH spends its research time and to what projects they offer grants and contracts.
> "It's a revolving door of over $30 billion in annual grants and contracts going out to the medical community (with our tax dollars), and then scientists receiving royalty payments from undisclosed payers (up to $400 million every ten years)."

This financial "revolving door" appears to be fostering a culture of secrecy at the NIH, said Andrzejewski, who pointed out that in the NIH grants, the agency:

> " … continues [to] redact the name of the royalty payer (think pharmaceutical company), the invention (patent/license number), and the individual scientist's payment amount.
> "They are acting like they have a lot to hide."

Moreover, the power and influence Fauci has amassed should itself be investigated, according to Andrzejewski:

> "It would also be good to know more as to how Dr. Fauci ended up in a position where he's paid more than his boss, more than the HHS Secretary and even more than the President.
> "This Fauci-Grady case study could also perhaps lead to reform when it comes to ethical and financial disclosure requirements across NIH."

Andrzejewski said his organization's efforts have succeeded in attracting some attention from members of Congress.

"During the review of next year's HHS budget, Rep. John Moolenaar questioned NIH Acting Director Lawrence Tabak about our work around royalty payments," Andrzejewski said.

"He got Tabak to concede there was the appearance of a conflict of interest and urged him to make the information available quickly."

A group of five senators on the Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee, led by Sen. Rand Paul, sent a letter to Tabak demanding answers, but "so far, NIH is ignoring them just like they're ignoring OpenTheBooks," he said.

While mainly Republican members of Congress have raised questions about Fauci, Andrzejewski said the issue isn't partisan.

"It's important to note that we have expressed a desire for further investigation, but we absolutely believe it ought to be a nonpartisan issue," he said.

"If elected officials want to restore trust in agencies like NIH, both sides of the aisle should want transparency for the public."

This nation owes Adam Andrzejewski a debt of gratitude, for prying open the walls of secrecy at the NIH.
His organization has cleverly found a strategy for using FOIA requests to spotlight the odd goings-on with Anthony Fauci at the rudder of a very profitable ship.
Now, we will see whether the judicial branch functions ethically and whether or not we are still a nation that follows the rule of law.
A personal Thank You.

'Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. Takes on Fauci in 'Most Important Book' of our Times'!
More than 'one million people have purchased' Robert F. Kennedy Jr.'s book The Real Anthony Fauci, the top-selling non-fiction book in the world, since its publication seven months ago. This sales figure is remarkable given that almost all major mainstream news organizations have refused to review the book.

It would appear that, as with Politicians, Heads of Agencies, are akin to A babies Diaper.! They Need to be Changed, Regularly……!
And for the Same Reason.
Also, the Agencies who do not Comply with Legal Requests for FOI Should be held in Contempt of Court.
The CEO jailed , until the Documents (Unredacted) are supplied as requested…and not Shredded.

I have wondered since day one of this fiasco why the Chief of the Bioethics Department wasn't screaming about this covid plandemic and turned a blind eye as her husband "Herr" Pfauci proceeded to inject these experimental mRNA gene therapy inoculations on humans. I thought her job was to stop things like experimentation on human beings...It wasn't enough for Herr Pfauci to kill beagle puppies and torture orphaned children....Read "The Real Anthony Fauci" if you haven't yet!

When human flaws become institutionalized, we see what happens to public health and the health of the biosphere. This is why individual self-interest must be monitored and regulated, with wisdom and compassion, for the common, public good. It's both a "liberal" AND "conservative" necessity.

Contrary to CHD's Comment Policy, I will attempt to criticize Anthony Fauci, as I know no other way to criticize his policies without naming him as responsible for them. His advocacy of lockdowns and business closures did more that hurt "The Economy" (an abstract concept), they hurt millions of real people and took away their livelihoods and businesses, and that is a really serious crime. He should be held responsible for that.

WELL if its a GOAL to protect against 'severe disease leading to hospitalization and death', why not simply allow Doctors to NOT COMMIT MALPRACTICE? And let them offer EARLY AND CHEAP Ivermectin to a newly infected individuals? Instead of giving the kool-aid as a sort of preventative, that he NOW admits doesn't prevent Con-vid4ever. And apparently wears off and needs endless boosters. We are not fooled. He wants the money. Not the health of the individuals. Fauci needs to be fired. And prosecuted.

There will never be true transparency to the public. They will continue to use "Plannedemics" as their Trojan horse to destroy the global economies, assert tyrannical mandates on the people, and usher in the Jesuit's New World Order. Every government that signed onto Agenda 21 (179 nations) has been infiltrated and corrupted through intimidation, assassination, and threat of death. The only hope one has is to believe on the son of God, repent, and be filled with the Holy Spirit. Aside from that, all nations of the world will be forced to take the mark of the beast in order to buy and sell....(Revelation 13) a reminder: in the first year to mid-december 2020, there were around 17 million "cases" in the US and 310,000 deaths with COVID-19 present. the first injections were made from around 10 december 2020.

600 million doses and 19 months later, there have been 91.5 million cases and 1,050,000 deaths with CoViD-19 present.
cases are up more than FIVE TIMES the cases and THREE TIMES the deaths. what is the under-reporting factor (URF) for the US only component of VAERS that shows 842,576 adverse events and 13,604 deaths? the lazarus report estimated a URF of less than one in 100 events were reported to VAERS - most estimates show an improvement in the URF to around one in 40. even assuming a URF of one in 20, that still implies 260,000 deaths and around 17 million injuries.
it is not simply a "conflict of interest" it is hiding evidence of genocide and mass wounding during a killing spree.

Someone needs to ask the Vaccine Cabal about this little factoid!
12 months prior to injections – 70 million cases globally and 1.7 million deaths.
18 months after injections – 563 million cases and 6.4 million deaths, numbers for Canada – before injections 450,000 cases and 13,000 deaths, after injections, 4 million cases and 42,000 deaths.
US numbers – before injections '17 million cases and 310,000 deaths', after injections, '91 million cases and 1,047,000 deaths'.
Cases are up 8-10 times the case rate without vaccines, deaths are 3-4 times.
How many cases and deaths would there have been with ZERO injections? half? a quarter?

Ok, let's say they give you all the information, all the documents you ask. What are you gonna do?? Sue them?? Investigate them?? Yeah..sure. I've read/watched things like this a lot. Oh we should investigate this person, that agency,blah blah blah...Anything happened?? NOPE!!! It's all NATO, No Action Talk Only! Talk is cheap people. Nobody is being investigated, Nobody is being held accountable. These people are still in power doing what they're doing. We know it, they know it, they know that we know. But, they don't care. Because they know they will get away with it. They can buy their way out. No investigation. Why?? Because they're all crooks! Because it will expose themselves too. Now, why exactly would they do that???

633 FOIA requests ignored? Why would this one be so different? They will get around it like they always do. When the system that one is working with is corrupt, the one with the most to hide is the one that seems to get away.

Not much confidence in getting anything from them...but the fact that they may be losing a few minutes of blissful sleep in their million dollar mansions while we struggle to choose between eggs, milk and bread over gas?

Let's hope Fauci and his bride get what they deserve.
